Man of the land

Oklahoma artist Ken Baker is fulfilling a lifelong dream of becoming a full-time artist. A successful businessman, Baker operates a company that he founded more than 20 years ago, but, with continued success as an artist, he has devoted more time to his true passion.

A devoted landscape painter whose work has been a favorite with collectors for years, Baker paints exclusively in oil and his subjects reflect his interest in the Southwest, particularly Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Colorado.

"I love the wide open spaces of the West," says Baker, "And varied landscapes, from the prairie to the mountains to the desert."

His love for plein air painting has led him to many unique sites, including old missions and early settlements.

"It is my intention to create paintings that are honest and fresh," says Baker. "I find that easier to accomplish if I am standing on-site. As an artist, I want the viewer of my paintings to feel they are there with me."

Baker is represented by the Dean-Lively Gallery in Edmond, Oklahoma. 🍷
